maybe, if it had a rational basis to do so, such a law might be constitutional if that is the case, the report would read: could do better students access and communicate with instructors and peers via the online bulletin board discussions, allowing collaboration and open access